POPE PIUS XI GIVES FULL TEXT OF ENCYCLICAL

DEVELOPS IDEAS GIVEN IN SUMMARY OF RADIO ADDRESS MAY 15

SKETCHES HISTORY AND RELIEF OF RELATIONS BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR

Vatican City, May 23.—(U.P.) — Pope Pius XI today issued the full text of his encyclical on capital and labor, a summary of which he read in a radio address on May 15.

The text, for the most part, developed the ideas given in the summary.

Sketching the history of the relations between capital and labor, the encyclical said:

"For a long time capital appropriated so much that it left the worker barely a sufficient amount for existance. It was the changeless law that wealth belonged to the rich and the workers must remain perpetually of the proletariat, living a poor miserable existence; it is no wonder that these false views have been opposed."

The encyclical, considered the most significant economic pronouncement of the church since the time of Leo XIII, calls for the reconstruction of the world's entire economic system to bring about a more equitable distribution of wealth between capital and labor.

The summary was given in an address to 7,000 pilgrims of various nationalities gathered to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of Pope Leo's famous encyclical on labor, "Rerum Novarum," and set forth briefly the principles expounded by the text.

The encyclical adhered to the historic division between the classes of capital and labor, holding that the creator decreed such a division and that it was forever unchangeable, but it was made clear that there must be a grading-up of the conditions of the lower levels of mankind in order that they might enjoy the benefits of modern improvements and greater productivity.

Underlying the entire document was apparent the desire that the laborer be granted a fair wage, compatible with the requirements of social justice, even though this entailed a reconstruction of the present economic system in some degree. At the same time, while admitting that some phases of liberal thought have apprcached the ideals of the church, the principle of Pope Leo's "Rerum Novarum" concerning the impossibility of compromise with socialism was reiterated and the theory of private ownership was reaffirmed.

Such ownership, however, must be upon an enlightened basis which would take heed of the good of all society, it was made clear.

Referring to the menace of trusts and the accumulation of wealth and power, the encyclical said:

"This power becomes despotic in the hands of those who, possessing money, dominate credit and control loans. Such people are, in a sense, distributors of the blood whereby the economic organism lives. They have the soul of economy in their hands; no one can breathe without their permission. Thus there is a concentration of power."

"This is the result of a temporary economy with unrestrained competition, allowing only the strongest to survive. That is most violent and most conscienceless.

This concentration of wealth generates three kinds of struggles: first, for economic supremacy; secondly, for political power, and thirdly, a struggle between states.

"Free competition has destroyed itself. Economic hegemony has taken the place of freedom of markets. Greed for power has succeeded to desire for wealth, and our whole economy has thus become terribly hard, inexorable and cruel."

Referring to relations in international economy, the encyclical said:

"A double current is issuing forth—on the one side, nationalism or economic imperialism, on the other side something equally menacing and execrable, banking internationalism or international imperialism of money, whose fatherland is found where wealth is.

"The state does not do anything hostile but rather makes for friendly action when it endeavors to bring capital and labor together for the sake of the common welfare. State intervention in this sense does not injure, but rather strengthens, the principle of private property.

"Taking into consideration the present-day situation, we deem it wise that as far as possible, labor contract should be somewhat tempered by profit-sharing plans, and this is already being done in one form or another.

"Wealth is produced solely through the workers' labor, either manual or mechanical. No people rose from want to wealth except through common labor by managers and workers.

"It should be forgotten, however, that their common efforts are both futile unless God had given the natural wealth of nature."

EDSTROM, HYATT MAKE ROBBERY CONFESSIONS; TO FACE COURT MONDAY

1ST DEGREE LARCENY CHARGES CULMINATE DARING STORE RAID

ADMIT BURGLARY OF LUNDBORG JEWELRY STORE, ANDERSON DRY CLEANERS

HYATT ADMITS BREAK-IN OF "HOT DOG" STAND; PAIR TO BE QUESTIONED FURTHER

With practically all of the stolen jewelry and clothing returned, Arthur Edstrom and Leonard Hyatt, West Brainerd, have made a complete confession, admitting the robbery of the Lundborg Jewelry store and the Anderson Dry Cleaning establishment, Laurel street Monday night, Chief of Police Thomas Templeton said today.

Compalints against the two were being prepared by County Attorney Arthur J. Sullivan today. He said that Edstrom and Hyatt would be arraigned in municipal court Monday morning on charges of grand larceny in the first degree which carries a prison sentence upon conviction of one to ten years.

Edstrom who lead Chief Templeton and Sheriff Frank E. Little to the jewelry cache in a ten gallon milk can near the Minnesota and International railway bridge and the clothing nearby, three miles west of Brainerd Friday, was the first to confess. He made a confession to Chief Templeton and Officer H. B. Sande. Later, Hyatt was shown the stolen articles and asked if he ever saw them before. He replied he had not. Last evening he expressed a willingness to talk and confessed the Monday night robbery as well as the Coney Island Lunch robbery on April 29. The confession was made to Chief Templeton and Officer Erick Graff.

Identification of finger prints on glass and other articles in the store was important in securing confessions.

In the confessions Chief Templeton traced the routes taken by the pair in going to and from the robbery.

"The two went home after midnight and then returned downtown, walking down Laurel street to Fifth, then to Maple, then to the drivein to the rear of the Electric Garage, scaling the stone wall and walking back of Turcotte's store. After the robbery they retraced their steps to Maple street, walked along Maple street to the ravine to the rear of the court house entering Laurel street at the Mississippi river bridge," the chief said.

Edstrom will be questioned further today as to the "hot dog" stand robbery. Stolen property from the lunch counter was found on his person as well as Hyatt's when arrested, police said.

Hyatt will also be questioned concerning his actions the night the Ramsey fur farm was robbed of 14 beaver which were slaughtered before stolen.

Authorities are working on the theory that Bud Keller and Ed Poster picked up Hyatt in West Brainerd the night of the robbery and took him with them to the fur farm.

Keller and Poster are to be taken into custody at the Canadian border in a few days. They broke jail at Walker just before they were to be taken to St. Cloud and were later arrested at a Western Canadian town on vagrancy charges.

OLD PROSPECTOR OFFERS $5,000 TO SOME BRIGHT LAD

SENDS IT TO MAYOR OF CHICAGO TO GIVE TO ONE NEEDING NEW START

"GOOD TIME CHARLIE DAWSON," AGED "DESERT RAT" IS THE DONOR

Chicago, May 23.—(U.P.)—Mayor Anton J. Cermak was looking today for "some bright young fellows who need a new start" to give them $5,000 as a present from "good time" Charlie Dawson, an aged "desert rat" who found a "bottle of gold dust" and wants to give it away.

Cermak received the $5,000, all in $100 bills, in a letter which Dawson wrote from the Drake hotel. The accompanying letter was 12 pages long and required $1.08 in stamps. The penmanship marked the writer as probably old and feeble.

Dawson was remembered at the Drake as "a liberal old fellow who wore a sombrero," he registered as from San Francisco.

"I am an old fellow that the boys out west call 'Good Time Charlie Dawson' because I was always pulling for good times even when things looked dark," wrote Dawson to the mayor.

"Well, they sure broke good for me in the long run and that is why I am writing you." Dawson explanied then how his folks died when he was "a shaver," how he worked in a hotel and a livery stable, then joined a railroad gang and traveled west on the railroad's money.

Then, he said, he got a burro, and went into the mountains hunting gold.

"I was what is called a 'desert rat,' I guess,"he wrote. 'I would put the dust in a bottle and when winter came would have enough to last me through. But one day I found more than a bottle full and it fixed me for the rest of my life."

'COAL FIELD' IS DISCOVERED IN CITY OF CHICAGO

Chicago, May 23.—(U.P.)—A "coal field" has been discovered within the city limits of Chicago and tons of good anthracite fuel were taken today from a region never before suspected of containing anything more valuable than dirt.

The history of the "coal field" goes back to 1906, when the docks of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company were swept by fire. After the docks collapsed and burned away, there remained a mammoth heap of coal, which blazed for two months, then died out, leaving what appeared to be a small mountain of ashes.

In recent years, the ashes became covered with dirt. Grass grew over the area. Buildings were erected around it. The fire was forgotten.

Recently two boys who were playing "pirates" dug into the former dock site. Several feet down they struck coal. The news spread. A "rush" was on.

Only the "crust" of the coal pile burned in 1906, it has developed, and every family in the far southside neighborhood was busy today digging up and hauling away their winter's supply of coal from the "mine." Even the women and children took part. There were several fights over "claims."

APPEAL MADE TO BRIAND NOT TO RESIGN OFFICE

PREMIER OF FRANCE WANTS HIM TO CONTINUE AS FOREIGN MINISTER

NECESSITY FOR HIS GUIDANCE UNTIL NAVAL ACCORD IS REACHED

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, May 23—Premier Pierre Laval appealed to Foreign Minister Aristide Briand today to reconsider his announced desire to resign.

The necessity of Briand's guidance until a naval accord is reached and The Hague reaches a decision in regard to the Austro-German customs union was stressed by Premier Laval, who called on Briand at the Quai D'Orsay.

Briand will spend the week-end at Cucherel, but he promised to make a definite statement about his resignation at Wednesday's cabinet meeting, when he reports on the mission to Geneva.

Briand told the premier that the naval results reached so far have surpassed his hopes. He is satisfied, he said also, that The Hague will reach a solution of the Customs Anschluss.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy is friendly, Briand reported, and he is hopeful that redoubled efforts will solve the troublesome naval deadlock between France and Italy.

The report to the cabinet Wednesday is expected to expose important consequences of private conversations among Arthur Henderson, secretary of state for foreign affairs of Great Britain; Grandi; Julius Curtius, the German foreign minister; Dr. Edward Benes, minister of foreign affairs of Czecho-Slovakia, and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister.

Police reported today that three royalists and three pacifists were injured and three royalists were arrested in the demonstration which occurred upon Briand's arrival from The Hague last night.

264 LOST THEIR LIVES IN FRANCE IN WORLD WAR

PRESIDENT URGES HIS HEARERS NOT TO GLORIFY WAR OR PERPETUATE HATREDS

DRAWS ATTENTION OF NATION TO ALL YOUTHS WHO WENT OVER, NEVER CAME BACK

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Orange, Va., May 23.—Thirty miles from a railroad, high up in a crevice of the Blue Ridge, President Hoover today delivered a broadcast heard throughout the United States.

It was the first of several addresses he expects to make from his fishing camp this summer over a new radio alignment the broadcasting agencies have provided. The occasion was the dedication of the Cornell University war memorial at Ithaca, N. Y.

Swishing pine trees and the roaring waters of Laurel and Forks Creek forming the Rapidan were the only sounds as Mr. Hoover plugged in the microphone to pay high tribute to the college youths who lost their lives in the world war.

The president picked up the cue for the start of his address without the assistance of an announcer—a practice he intends to follow in his other camp speeches. The microphone was placed on a table in his log cabin living room and he rested in an easy chair as he spoke.

The speech heralded the valor of the 264 boys from Cornell who lost their lives in France. The president took occasion, however, to draw the attention of the nation "to all our youth who went over, never to come back."

Mr. Hoover urged his listeners not to glorify war or to perpetuate hatreds, but to remember the ideals which possessed the youth of the country at the time.

His speech follows in full:

"Fourteen years ago this morning a group of American boys carried an American flag into the fighting on the Aisne front, and thereby made a splendid gesture symbolical of the might of the new world mustering for the decisive issue.

"This unit was composed of undergraduates of Cornell University and was under the leadership of Captain Edward Tinkham, a Cornell student in the class of 1916. It was a vanguard of a mighty army of American youth that flowed across the Atlantic in the months that followed. In this army were 9,000 other Cornellians who followed Tinkham's unit in the nation's service.

"Two hundred and sixty-four of them did not return; I am happy today to take part in the dedication of a permanent memorial to those men of Cornell University who lost their lives in the world war. Significant in itself, this memorial takes on a broader aspect. While we pay tribute specifically to the service of the 264 Cornell men whose names are carved in this beautiful shrine, the occasion recalls the great part in our war effort played by the men of all universities and colleges.

"The towers and cloister in which the memory of Cornell's heroic dead is enshrined—distinctive, beautiful, and useful though they are—are not mere buildings. They are symbols, fitting and lasting symbols, of the ideals for which the men of Cornell, of all our universities and colleges, of our whole country, fought and died. They commemorate the contribution of youth to the cause of America, a free gift of devoted young lives to an ideal they deemed worth cherishing and defending.

"These young men of the Tinkham unit were typical American boys. Their experiences and their reactions typify the response of American youth everywhere in the hour of crisis. Volunteers sprang up right and left; young men eagerly offered to risk their future—their lives—because they wanted to do their man's share in a crisis of the world. Without one atom of selfishness, they sought to carry out their ideal of manhood. It involved hardships, danger, even death, but they were unafraid. With heads erect, with vibrant tread, they left their training camps. Alive with purpose, alive with honor, alive with faith, their only anxiety was how quickly they would get over there. They had no illusions about what was ahead of them. Life to them had been sweet, joyous. They never faltered but gave up all for a cause which they believed to be right. There was no searching for hidden motives or for ulterior purposes. They acepted whatever came with a smile, and they did not ask questions. They had no hatred in their heads, but they went about their job

BANK ROBBERY AT PIERZ STIRS CHIEF EXECUTIVE

CALLS UPON SHERIFFS OF THE STATE TO AID STATE BUREAU CRIMINAL APPREHENSION

BUREAU NOT YET OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED OF PIERZ $14,000 BANK ROBBERY

St. Paul, Minn., May 23.—(U.P.)—Gov. Floyd B. Olson today took direct action to curb a "rapidly rising tide of crime in Minnesota" after a $14,000 bank robbery at Pierz Friday.

In a letter to Elden Rowe, Nobles county sheriff at Worthington, and president of the Minnesota Sheriffs' Association, he called upon the sheriffs to afford greater co-operation to the state bureau of criminal apprehension.

Upon publication of the governor's letter, it was disclosed that the bureau has not yet been officially notified of the Friday robbery. Unofficial notice was given by the Minnesota Bankers' Association but the bureau is powerless to act unless the request for aid is made by the sheriff.

The governor's letter came as an aftermath of failure of the recent legislature to approve the law whereby the personnel of the criminal bureau would have been increased from eight to 20 men.

Today's letter was written in accord with an agreement reached by the Sheriffs' Association with the bureau at a meeting last fall when further co-operation between the two organizations was promised.

Expressing regret over the legislators' failure to increase the bureau personnel, Olson pointed out that all of the eight operatives of the bureau are seldom busy at the same time and assured the Sheriffs' Association of the co-operation of Melvin Passolt, newly appointed chief of the criminal bureau.

PRETTY BRUNETTE SOUGHT AS KEY TO MYSTERY KILLING

LOS ANGELES PROBES SLAYING OF POLITICIAN AND MAGAZINE PUBLISHER

IN CONNECTION WITH WHICH DAVID H. CLARK HAS BEEN CHARGED WITH MURDER

By RONALD W. WAGONER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Los Angeles, May 23—An "attractive brunette" was sought by police today in the belief that she might furnish a key to the mystery killing of Chas. Crawford and Herbert Spencer in connection with which David H. Clark, brilliant young attorney, has been charged with murder.

The woman, June Taylor, 28, owner of the Clinton hotel in downtown Los Angeles, had been missing since Thursday night, police said. They believed she was a confidant of Clark and the opinion was expressed that she might be able to tell of his whereabouts from 4:30 o'clock last Wednesday until 11 o'clock Thursday night when he surrendered to District Attorney Buron Fitts.

Police said Miss Taylor was a former associate of Albert Marco, who was sent to San Quentin by Clark about five years ago in the young attorney's first big battle against the underworld as a prosecutor.

It was reported that the attractive young brunette had paid a hurried visit to the San Quentin prison cell of her associate, Albert Marco, one time "vice baron" of the southern city.

The woman who visited Marco registered at the prison as "Mrs. A. M. Donovan," a name understood to have been used by Miss Taylor on several occasions. Under that name she has maintained an account in a San Rafael, Calif., bank which the imprisoned Marco used for spending money.

Warden James Holohan said a man accompanied "Mrs. Donovan" to the prison, who he believed was Frank E. Carroll, prominent San Francisco business man who has taken an interest in San Quentin affairs.

"We believe Miss Taylor has some valuable information on Clark's movements after Spencer and Crawford were shot," said Blayney Matthews, Fitts' chief investigator.

Clark's wife, Nancy, the daughter of a late circuit judge of Long Island, said she was convinced of her husband's innocence. Her sister, Miss Molly Malone, supported her contention.

Clark continued his defense plans for a preliminary hearing next Thursday. He was arraigned late yesterday.

While Clark maintained a smiling silence and the law sought to clear up mysterious angles of the case, plans were completed for burial today of "Good Time" Charlie Crawford, the "Grey Wolf of Spring Street" and Herb Spencer, the mild mannered newspaperman.

Crawford's body lay in a $15,000 casket. Late in the afternoon Rev. Gustav Briegleb, who converted Crawford a few months ago, will conduct

'COAL FIELD' IS DISCOVERED IN CITY OF CHICAGO

Chicago, May 23.—(U.P.)—A "coal field" has been discovered within the city limits of Chicago and tons of good anthracite fuel were taken today from a region never before suspected of containing anything more valuable than dirt.

The history of the "coal field" goes back to 1906, when the docks of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company were swept by fire. After the docks collapsed and burned away, there remained a mammoth heap of coal, which blazed for two months, then died out, leaving what appeared to be a small mountain of ashes.

In recent years, the ashes became covered with dirt. Grass grew over the area. Buildings were erected around it. The fire was forgotten.

Recently two boys who were playing "pirates" dug into the former dock site. Several feet down they struck coal. The news spread. A "rush" was on.

Only the "crust" of the coal pile burned in 1906, it has developed, and every family in the far southside neighborhood was busy today digging up and hauling away their winter's supply of coal from the "mine." Even the women and children took part. There were several fights over "claims."

APPEAL MADE TO BRIAND NOT TO RESIGN OFFICE

PREMIER OF FRANCE WANTS HIM TO CONTINUE AS FOREIGN MINISTER

NECESSITY FOR HIS GUIDANCE UNTIL NAVAL ACCORD IS REACHED

By RALPH HEINZEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, May 23—Premier Pierre Laval appealed to Foreign Minister Aristide Briand today to reconsider his announced desire to resign.

The necessity of Briand's guidance until a naval accord is reached and The Hague reaches a decision in regard to the Austro-German customs union was stressed by Premier Laval, who called on Briand at the Quai D'Orsay.

Briand will spend the week-end at Cucherel, but he promised to make a definite statement about his resignation at Wednesday's cabinet meeting, when he reports on the mission to Geneva.

Briand told the premier that the naval results reached so far have surpassed his hopes. He is satisfied, he said also, that The Hague will reach a solution of the Customs Anschluss.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy is friendly, Briand reported, and he is hopeful that redoubled efforts will solve the troublesome naval deadlock between France and Italy.

The report to the cabinet Wednesday is expected to expose important consequences of private conversations among Arthur Henderson, secretary of state for foreign affairs of Great Britain; Grandi; Julius Curtius, the German foreign minister; Dr. Edward Benes, minister of foreign affairs of Czecho-Slovakia, and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet foreign minister.

Police reported today that three royalists and three pacifists were injured and three royalists were arrested in the demonstration which occurred upon Briand's arrival from The Hague last night.

264 LOST THEIR LIVES IN FRANCE IN WORLD WAR

PRESIDENT URGES HIS HEARERS NOT TO GLORIFY WAR OR PERPETUATE HATREDS

DRAWS ATTENTION OF NATION TO ALL YOUTHS WHO WENT OVER, NEVER CAME BACK

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Orange, Va., May 23.—Thirty miles from a railroad, high up in a crevice of the Blue Ridge, President Hoover today delivered a broadcast heard throughout the United States.

It was the first of several addresses he expects to make from his fishing camp this summer over a new radio alignment the broadcasting agencies have provided. The occasion was the dedication of the Cornell University war memorial at Ithaca, N. Y.

Swishing pine trees and the roaring waters of Laurel and Forks Creek forming the Rapidan were the only sounds as Mr. Hoover plugged in the microphone to pay high tribute to the college youths who lost their lives in the world war.

The president picked up the cue for the start of his address without the assistance of an announcer—a practice he intends to follow in his other camp speeches. The microphone was placed on a table in his log cabin living room and he rested in an easy chair as he spoke.

The speech heralded the valor of the 264 boys from Cornell who lost their lives in France. The president took occasion, however, to draw the attention of the nation "to all our youth who went over, never to come back."

Mr. Hoover urged his listeners not to glorify war or to perpetuate hatreds, but to remember the ideals which possessed the youth of the country at the time.

His speech follows in full:

"Fourteen years ago this morning a group of American boys carried an American flag into the fighting on the Aisne front, and thereby made a splendid gesture symbolical of the might of the new world mustering for the decisive issue.

"This unit was composed of undergraduates of Cornell University and was under the leadership of Captain Edward Tinkham, a Cornell student in the class of 1916. It was a vanguard of a mighty army of American youth that flowed across the Atlantic in the months that followed. In this army were 9,000 other Cornellians who followed Tinkham's unit in the nation's service.

"Two hundred and sixty-four of them did not return; I am happy today to take part in the dedication of a permanent memorial to those men of Cornell University who lost their lives in the world war. Significant in itself, this memorial takes on a broader aspect. While we pay tribute specifically to the service of the 264 Cornell men whose names are carved in this beautiful shrine, the occasion recalls the great part in our war effort played by the men of all universities and colleges.

"The towers and cloister in which the memory of Cornell's heroic dead is enshrined—distinctive, beautiful, and useful though they are—are not mere buildings. They are symbols, fitting and lasting symbols, of the ideals for which the men of Cornell, of all our universities and colleges, of our whole country, fought and died. They commemorate the contribution of youth to the cause of America, a free gift of devoted young lives to an ideal they deemed worth cherishing and defending.

"These young men of the Tinkham unit were typical American boys. Their experiences and their reactions typify the response of American youth everywhere in the hour of crisis. Volunteers sprang up right and left; young men eagerly offered to risk their future—their lives—because they wanted to do their man's share in a crisis of the world. Without one atom of selfishness, they sought to carry out their ideal of manhood. It involved hardships, danger, even death, but they were unafraid. With heads erect, with vibrant tread, they left their training camps. Alive with purpose, alive with honor, alive with faith, their only anxiety was how quickly they would get over there. They had no illusions about what was ahead of them. Life to them had been sweet, joyous. They never faltered but gave up all for a cause which they believed to be right. There was no searching for hidden motives or for ulterior purposes. They acepted whatever came with a smile, and they did not ask questions. They had no hatred in their heads, but they went about their job

CALLS UPON SHERIFFS OF THE STATE TO AID STATE BUREAU CRIMINAL APPREHENSION

BUREAU NOT YET OFFICIALLY NOTIFIED OF PIERZ $14,000 BANK ROBBERY

St. Paul, Minn., May 23.—(U.P.)—Gov. Floyd B. Olson today took direct action to curb a "rapidly rising tide of crime in Minnesota" after a $14,000 bank robbery at Pierz Friday.

In a letter to Elden Rowe, Nobles county sheriff at Worthington, and president of the Minnesota Sheriffs' Association, he called upon the sheriffs to afford greater co-operation to the state bureau of criminal apprehension.

Upon publication of the governor's letter, it was disclosed that the bureau has not yet been officially notified of the Friday robbery. Unofficial notice was given by the Minnesota Bankers' Association but the bureau is powerless to act unless the request for aid is made by the sheriff.

The governor's letter came as an aftermath of failure of the recent legislature to approve the law whereby the personnel of the criminal bureau would have been increased from eight to 20 men.

Today's letter was written in accord with an agreement reached by the Sheriffs' Association with the bureau at a meeting last fall when further co-operation between the two organizations was promised.

Expressing regret over the legislators' failure to increase the bureau personnel, Olson pointed out that all of the eight operatives of the bureau are seldom busy at the same time and assured the Sheriffs' Association of the co-operation of Melvin Passolt, newly appointed chief of the criminal bureau.

PRETTY BRUNETTE SOUGHT AS KEY TO MYSTERY KILLING

IN CONNECTION WITH WHICH DAVID H. CLARK HAS BEEN CHARGED WITH MURDER

By RONALD W. WAGONER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Los Angeles, May 23—An "attractive brunette" was sought by police today in the belief that she might furnish a key to the mystery killing of Chas. Crawford and Herbert Spencer in connection with which David H. Clark, brilliant young attorney, has been charged with murder.

The woman, June Taylor, 28, owner of the Clinton hotel in downtown Los Angeles, had been missing since Thursday night, police said. They believed she was a confidant of Clark and the opinion was expressed that she might be able to tell of his whereabouts from 4:30 o'clock last Wednesday until 11 o'clock Thursday night when he surrendered to District Attorney Buron Fitts.

Police said Miss Taylor was a former associate of Albert Marco, who was sent to San Quentin by Clark about five years ago in the young attorney's first big battle against the underworld as a prosecutor.

It was reported that the attractive young brunette had paid a hurried visit to the San Quentin prison cell of her associate, Albert Marco, one time "vice baron" of the southern city.

The woman who visited Marco registered at the prison as "Mrs. A. M. Donovan," a name understood to have been used by Miss Taylor on several occasions. Under that name she has maintained an account in a San Rafael, Calif., bank which the imprisoned Marco used for spending money.

Warden James Holohan said a man accompanied "Mrs. Donovan" to the prison, who he believed was Frank E. Carroll, prominent San Francisco business man who has taken an interest in San Quentin affairs.

"We believe Miss Taylor is some valuable information on Clark's movements after Spencer and Crawford were shot," said Blayney Matthews, Fitts' chief investigator.

Clark's wife, Nancy, the daughter of a late circuit judge of Long Island, said she was convinced of her husband's innocence. Her sister, Miss Molly Malone, supported her contention.

Clark continued his defense plans for a preliminary hearing next Thursday. He was arraigned late yesterday.

While Clark maintained a stalling silence and the law sought to clear up mysterious angles of the case, plans were completed for burial today of "Good Time" Charlie Crawford, the "Grey Wolf of Spring Street" and Herb Spencer, the mild mannered newspaperman.

Crawford's body lay in a $15,000 casket. Late in the afternoon Rev. Gustav Briegleb, who converted Crawford a few months ago, will conduct

For Your Inspection

The merchant and manufacturer who advertise, actually are placing their merchandise before you for inspection. They invite your most critical attention and an uncompromising comparison. And their advertisement so to speak, say to their products: "We have introduced you to the public---now stand on your own merits."

If the manufacturer and merchant did not have confidence in their wares, they would hesitate to call attention to them. For advertising rigidly tests the maker, the seller and the merchandise. Business so tested, and found not wanting, is prosperous.

In the long run, you can depend on the man who advertises, as well as on his product. That is one reason why people have found that it pays to read advertisements.

It is through advertising that the excellent things of the world are brought to the attention of those who are seeking for the best and most economical way to spend their money.

Read the advertisements. They are news.

For Your Inspection

The merchant and manufacturer who advertise, actually are placing their merchandise before you for inspection. They invite your most critical attention and an uncompromising comparison. And their advertisement so to speak, say to their products: "We have introduced you to the public---now stand on your own merits."

If the manufacturer and merchant did not have confidence in their wares, they would hesitate to call attention to them. For advertising rigidly tests the maker, the seller and the merchandise. Business so tested, and found not wanting, is prosperous.

In the long run, you can depend on the man who advertises, as well as on his product. That is one reason why people have found that it pays to read advertisements.

It is through advertising that the excellent things of the world are brought to the attention of those who are seeking for the best and most economical way to spend their money.

Read the advertisements. They are news.

Industrial Survey is Reassuring

CONSTRUCTION projects for the state to date exceed $25,000,000, there is a good demand for agricultural labor, and other outdoor occupations will reduce surpluses of unskilled labor this month, says a recent United States labor department survey for Minnesota.

A number of railroad shops in the state increased operations to five days a week during the last 30 days and employment increases were noted in the automobile industry, wholesale groceries, iron and steel, cement plants and department stores, it was said.

A new post office building in Minneapolis and additional school and street railway projects are expected to alleviate unemployment. Approximately 300 workers are to be employed on a grade separation project.

Industrial employment in St. Paul was better during the last 30 days and increased call for farm labor was noted, the report said. Street widening and paving projects in the city are to get underway during the remainder of the month. Meat packing establishments report normal employment and there was some demand for clerical help.

"The opening of navigation in Duluth gave an impetus to general industrial activity in Duluth and on the iron range, but production of iron ore will probably not proceed on as great a scale as during previous seasons," the report said.

Tourist trade and state and county work are expected to aid employment conditions during the next month.

More than 100 men were reemployed in railroad car shops during the last 30 days in Winona, the report said. Extension of the city's system of storm sewers provided employment for 200 men.

Farm labor was reported in good demand in the region of Mankato. Creamery plants expect better employment during the summer months, it was said.

Herald Good News from Brainerd

THE fact that the Brainerd Northern Pacific railway shops have started making the first box cars of the 1,000 car contract was heralded to the world by the United Press and was thus given widest publicity. It is real news, not alone because it means employment to many but because it shows the abiding faith of the Northern Pacific railway in the territory it serves, that it believes in keeping its railway and equipment in top notch form, that it has cars built and material bought in its territory and thus aids every channel tending to better business conditions.

Many newspapers have commented on the progressive spirit of the railway. Among those near by commenting on the situation is the Little Falls Daily Transcript which says that "good news comes from Brainerd. The shops in that city have started work on an installment of 500 new box cars of the 1,000 order for the Northern Pacific and 163 extra men are being employed. Besides the Brainerd order 500 stock cars are being built at the Como shops, 500 box cars at Laurel, Mont., and 1,000 refrigerator cars at South Tacoma, Wash."

Railroads Seek Increase in Class Rates

RAILROADS operating in Minnesota seek increases in class rates.

A hearing before the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission set for June 15 has been postponed to Monday, September 14 at 2 p. m. in the office of the commission, State Capitol Building, St. Paul.

The postponement comes because the commission's docket is seriously congested at the present time and will be for the next 60 days with cases dealing with railroad and telephone matters.

Pheasant Hatching Contest

A PHEASANT hatching contest is being sponsored by the Morrison County Sportsmen's club with a view to interesting the boys and girls in wild game and to increase the number of pheasants in the county.

The committee has obtained 400 eggs from the state game and fish commission and will give settings of 15 eggs to boys and girls whose parents will cooperate with them in the project. Awards of $15, $10 and $5 will be given to the boys and girls most successful in hatching out the pheasants.

No Daylight Saving in Minnesota

THOSE who are urging daylight saving for Duluth might as well save their energy for other uses, says the Duluth Herald. Most people have overlooked the fact that the legislature in 1927 passed a law definitely forbidding the adoption of daylight saving by any municipality.

It is a silly law, and should be repealed, but it is the law, and for the present that is all there is to it.

About Butterfat

ABOUT the only consolation we can get out of the present butterfat prices is that we are glad we don't own stock in any oleomargarine factories, says the Thief River Falls Times.

RALPH BARTON, cartoonist and magazine artist, who killed himself because of a love affair, seemed a connoisseur in love. He tired of life after his fourth wife had divorced him and a fifth woman had jilted him, it is said.

THE Pierz bank robbery yesterday was the second of its kind in the history of Morrison county. In the fall of 1929 the bank at Cushing was robbed, but in that case the bandits were brought speedily to justice.

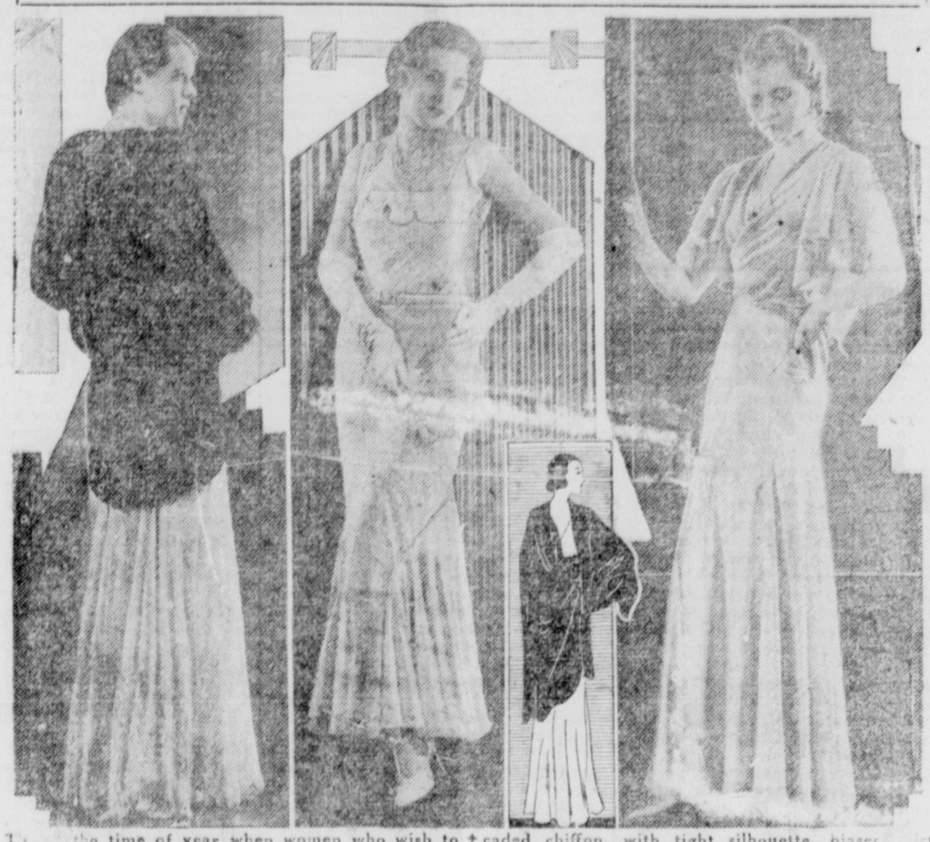

OPINIONS vary, that is in republics. Mass thinking is indulged in by a regime like the Soviet where the newspapers must hew to a line laid out by the authorities.

KEEP calm, husbands, says the Boston Transcript, for many a woman who lingers in front of a shop window has merely paused to reflect.

LAKE depths regulate spawning. Shallow lakes warm up faster than deep ones and accordingly fishing continues over a wide area.

Milady's Summer Frills Require Color; Individuality the Keynote

Color More Important Than Ever This Year. Three-Shade Outfits Are Sure to Win Popularity. Georgette, Chiffon and Crepe for Sheer Suits in Torrid Weather.

This is the time of year when women who wish to remain in style cast an anxious eye over their wardrobes and fly to advance showings of fashions for the coming season. ## End of Plunge Which Killed Air Ace

The terrific force with which Charles (Speed) Holman, veteran stunt flier, crashed to his death while flying 300 miles an hour upside-down at the Omaha air races, is graphically portrayed here. The pilot, well known throughout the country as one of the speed and stunt aces of the air, was thrown from the wreckage and instantly killed as the plane struck the ground. The shattered fuselage, left wing reared high, is shown flying into thousands of bits about the body of the luckless flier.

Industrial Survey is Reassuring

CONSTRUCTION projects for the state to date exceed $25,000,000, there is a good demand for agricultural labor, and other outdoor occupations will reduce surpluses of unskilled labor this month, says a recent United States labor department survey for Minnesota.

A number of railroad shops in the state increased operations to five days a week during the last 30 days and employment increases were noted in the automobile industry, wholesale groceries, iron and steel, cement plants and department stores, it was said.

A new post office building in Minneapolis and additional school and street railway projects are expected to alleviate unemployment. Approximately 300 workers are to be employed on a grade separation project.

Industrial employment in St. Paul was better during the last 30 days and increased call for farm labor was noted, the report said. Street widening and paving projects in the city are to get underway during the remainder of the month. Meat packing establishments report normal employment and there was some demand for clerical help.

"The opening of navigation in Duluth gave an impetus to general industrial activity in Duluth and on the iron range, but production of iron ore will probably not proceed on as great a scale as during previous seasons," the report said.

Tourist trade and state and county work are expected to aid employment conditions during the next month.

More than 100 men were reemployed in railroad car shops during the last 30 days in Winona, the report said. Extension of the city's system of storm sewers provided employment for 200 men.

Farm labor was reported in good demand in the region of Mankato. Creamery plants expect better employment during the summer months, it was said.

Herald Good News from Brainerd

THE fact that the Brainerd Northern Pacific railway shops have started making the first box cars of the 1,000 car contract was heralded to the world by the United Press and was thus given widest publicity. It is real news, not alone because it means employment to many but because it shows the abiding faith of the Northern Pacific railway in the territory it serves, that it believes in keeping its railway and equipment in top notch form, that it has cars built and material bought in its territory and thus aids every channel tending to better business conditions.

Many newspapers have commented on the progressive spirit of the railway. Among those near by commenting on the situation is the Little Falls Daily Transcript which says that "good news comes from Brainerd. The shops in that city have started work on an installment of 500 new box cars of the 1,000 order for the Northern Pacific and 163 extra men are being employed. Besides the Brainerd order 500 stock cars are being built at the Como shops, 500 box cars at Laurel, Mont., and 1,000 refrigerator cars at South Tacoma, Wash."

Railroads Seek Increase in Class Rates

RAILROADS operating in Minnesota seek increases in class rates.

A hearing before the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission set for June 15 has been postponed to Monday, September 14 at 2 p. m. in the office of the commission, State Capitol Building, St. Paul.

The postponement comes because the commission's docket is seriously congested at the present time and will be for the next 60 days with cases dealing with railroad and telephone matters.

Pheasant Hatching Contest

A PHEASANT hatching contest is being sponsored by the Morrison County Sportsmen's club with a view to interesting the boys and girls in wild game and to increase the number of pheasants in the county.

The committee has obtained 400 eggs from the state game and fish commission and will give settings of 15 eggs to boys and girls whose parents will cooperate with them in the project. Awards of $15, $10 and $5 will be given to the boys and girls most successful in hatching out the pheasants.

No Daylight Saving in Minnesota

THOSE who are urging daylight saving for Duluth might as well save their energy for other uses, says the Duluth Herald. Most people have overlooked the fact that the legislature in 1927 passed a law definitely forbidding the adoption of daylight saving by any municipality.

It is a silly law, and should be repealed, but it is the law, and for the present that is all there is to it.

About Butterfat

ABOUT the only consolation we can get out of the present butterfat prices is that we are glad we don't own stock in any oleomargarine factories, says the Thief River Falls Times.

RALPH BARTON, cartoonist and magazine artist, who killed himself because of a love affair, seemed a connoisseur in love. He tired of life after his fourth wife had divorced him and a fifth woman had jilted him, it is said.

THE Pierz bank robbery yesterday was the second of its kind in the history of Morrison county. In the fall of 1929 the bank at Cushing was robbed, but in that case the bandits were brought speedily to justice.

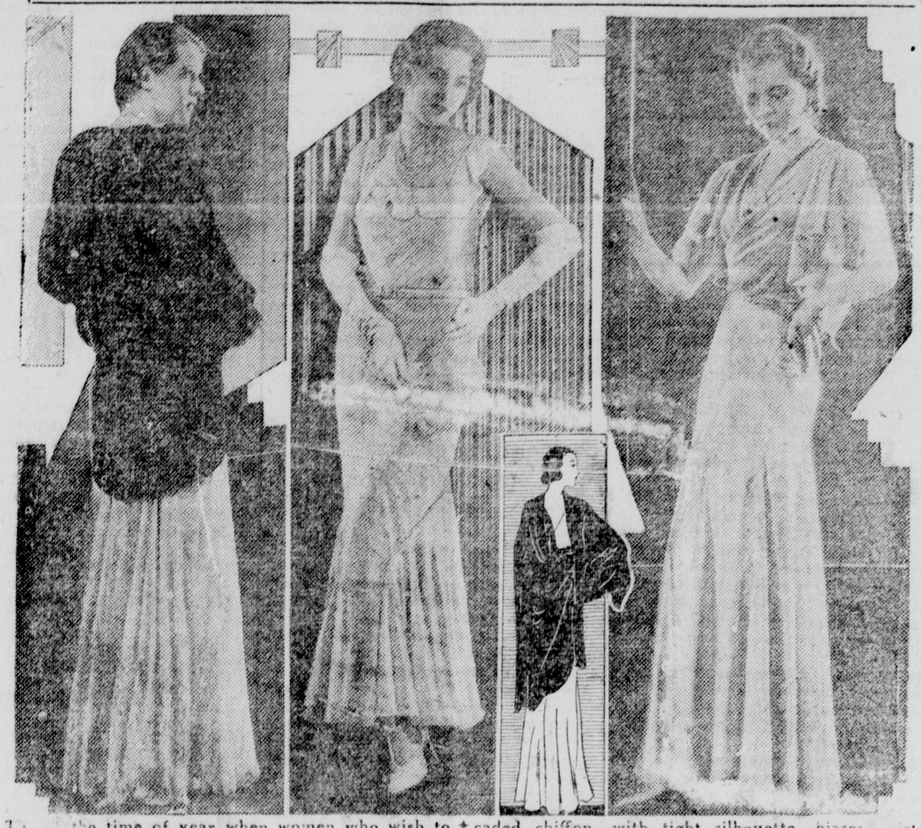

OPINIONS vary, that is in republics. Mass thinking is indulged in by a regime like the Soviet where the newspapers must hew to a line laid out by the authorities.

KEEP calm, husbands, says the Boston Transcript, for many a woman who lingers in front of a shop window has merely paused to reflect.

LAKE depths regulate spawning. Shallow lakes warm up faster than deep ones and accordingly fishing continues over a wide area.

BATTALINO RULES AS WORLD'S FEATHERWEIGHT CHAMPION

SCORES VICTORY OVER LA BARBA IN 15 ROUNDS

EFFECTIVELY DISPROVES BELIEF HE WAS A "CHEESE CHAMPION"

WINS BY RELENTLESSLY CARRYING THE BATTLE TO HIS OPPONENT

By DIXON STEWART

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 23.—World's Featherweight Champion Christopher (Bat) Battalino today was recognized as the ruler of his division in fact as well as in name.

The rugged little Hartford, Conn., Italian effectively disproved the belief that he was a "cheese champion" when he scored a convincing 15-round victory over Fidel La Barba of California at Madison Square Garden last night.

An overwhelming majority of the 9,179 spectators who donated $35,727.99 to witness the bout expected to see the title change hands—as almost every fistic expert predicted it would—and the 1,000 odd Hartford fans who attended the contest profited handsomely by accepting Broadway's "wise money" betting odds of 2 to 1 against the champion.

The bout was reminiscent of Battalino's only previous New York title defense, when the reputedly unworthy champion belied 4 to 1 betting odds to defeat Kid Chocolate, regarded as one of the truly great fighters of the day.

As in the Chocolate fight, Battalino won by relentlessly carrying the battle to his opponent and came from behind to win the unanimous verdict of Referee Kid McPartland and Judges Billy Joh and George Kelley. The decision was popular with the spectators, although a majority of newspapermen at the ringside believed LaBarba's cleaner hitting, clever boxing and ability to make Battalino miss earned him at least a draw.

Battalino, easily the strongest and most rugged fighter in the class, was the aggressor from the start, but landed few clean punches. He did almost all of his scoring during the infighting and often looked like a novice against LaBarba's clever boxing. Both fighters were guilty of frequent clinching but Battalino managed to make it appear that LaBarba was the chief offender in this respect, although in reality the champion forced many of the tie-ups.

LaBarba, easily the best boxer in the division and conqueror of all ranking contenders for the title, made the mistake of being overcautious. He allowed Battalino to steal the play during the early rounds, came back to badly outclass the champion from the fifth to the tenth inclusive, but lacked the stamina to keep pace with his opponent in the final sessions.

The Californian was disappointed keenly by his failure to win, but took the defeat in good spirit. "Really, I thought I deserved the decision," he told the United Press, "but at least I feel that I learned enough to beat him next time. You know I'd never seen Battalino until we weighed in today. I'm not kicking but I hope he'll give me another chance."

Battalino was jubilant, not only because of the victory but because of the great ovation he received on entering and leaving the ring. "I guess they won't call me a 'cheese champ' any longer," he said. "I realized I hadn't proved myself when I won the title from Routis in 1929 but now that I've won from Chocolate and LaBarba, who everyone said were the best men in the class, I guess they'll admit I must deserve the title. I came through with my hands Okay and am ready to meet any and all comers."

BIG TEN TRACK, FIELD MEET ON AT DYCHE STADIUM

IN PRELIMINARIES YESTERDAY MICHIGAN QUALIFIED 15 MEN, OHIO 14

MINNESOTA LAGGED IN THE REAR WITH SEVEN ASPIRANTS

Evanston, Ill., May 23.—(UP)—A close struggle between Michigan, Ohio State and Illinois was expected today in the finals of the thirty-first annual Big Ten track and field championship at Dyche Stadium.

Clarence Munn, Minnesota's football captain-elect, sprang a surprise yesterday when he led the qualifiers in the shot put with a toss of 47 feet 7 3-4 inches, nosing out Sammy Behr, Wisconsin, who for two years has held the Big Ten shot put title.

Seven of the eight men qualified by Wisconsin were in the weight events, four in the shot put and three in the discus. Kabat, Wisconsin, topped the discus qualifiers with a throw of 149 feet, 8 3-4 inches.

In the preliminaries yesterday, Michigan qualified 15 men, Ohio 14, Illinois 13. Iowa, with 16 qualifiers, unexpectedly topped the three favorites, but the Hawkeyes were not expected to furnish serious opposition to the leaders. Four of Iowa's qualifiers were in the hammer-throw.

The other qualifiers were divided as follows: Wisconsin 9, Indiana 8, Minnesota 7, Northwestern 3, Chicago 2, Purdue 2.

Eddie Tolan, Michigan's "midnight express," won both his heats in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, but had slower time than Kess Fazekas, Ohio State, in winning the century. Tolan's time was 9.8 and Fazekas' 9.7.

PENNEYS LOSE GAME TO CROSBY TEAM 9-8

WINNING RUN IS SCORED ON ERROR; McINTOSH AND FOSTER DIVIDE MOUND DUTY

The J. C. Penney kittenball team, leaders in the city D-ball league, lost a hard fought extra inning game last night to the Crosby kittenball team at the N. P. grounds. The count was tied at 8-8 at the end of the regulation seven innings and not until the 9th stanza did the Rangers send the winning run across the plate.

McIntosh started on the mound for the Penney crew but was hit freely and Foster took up the work on the hill after the fifth frame. Only one run was scored off Foster and that came in on an error in the ninth.

Gets Another Big [illegible]nance

By HARDIN BURNLEY

WHEN Jack Sharkey steps through the ropes at Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., on the night of June 10 to do battle with the ponderously picturesque Primo Carnera, it will be another big chance for the American heavy to win popular favor. He will be in a Jack-the-Giant-Killer role—David against Goliath, and all that sort of thing. As far as New York State is concerned, he will be the world's champion if he defeats Carnera. At any event he will be in line to fight the winner of the Schmeling-Stribling bout for the title which just missed Sharkey's mitts last June when Max tiptoed his way into a low punch and won the championship on a foul. Jack had been giving Maxie a boxing lesson up to that fateful moment in the fourth round. The champion promised Sharkey a return bout, but the former's canny manager, Joe Jacobs, ducked that dire event by matching the German with Stribling instead.

A few weeks ago it looked as though Sharkey would be left out in the cold this year, because the Schmeling-Stribling promoters presumably had tied up Carnera and that meant no big opposition for Jack. But as an old saw goes, "what lawyers do can often be undone." Carnera-Sharkey counsel claim the Illinois Garden's tie-up of Primo is invalid, so they made the big match between their fighters despite threats of injunctions, etc. Already the Sharkey-Carnera bout is completely eclipsing the Schmeling-Strib show in fan interest.

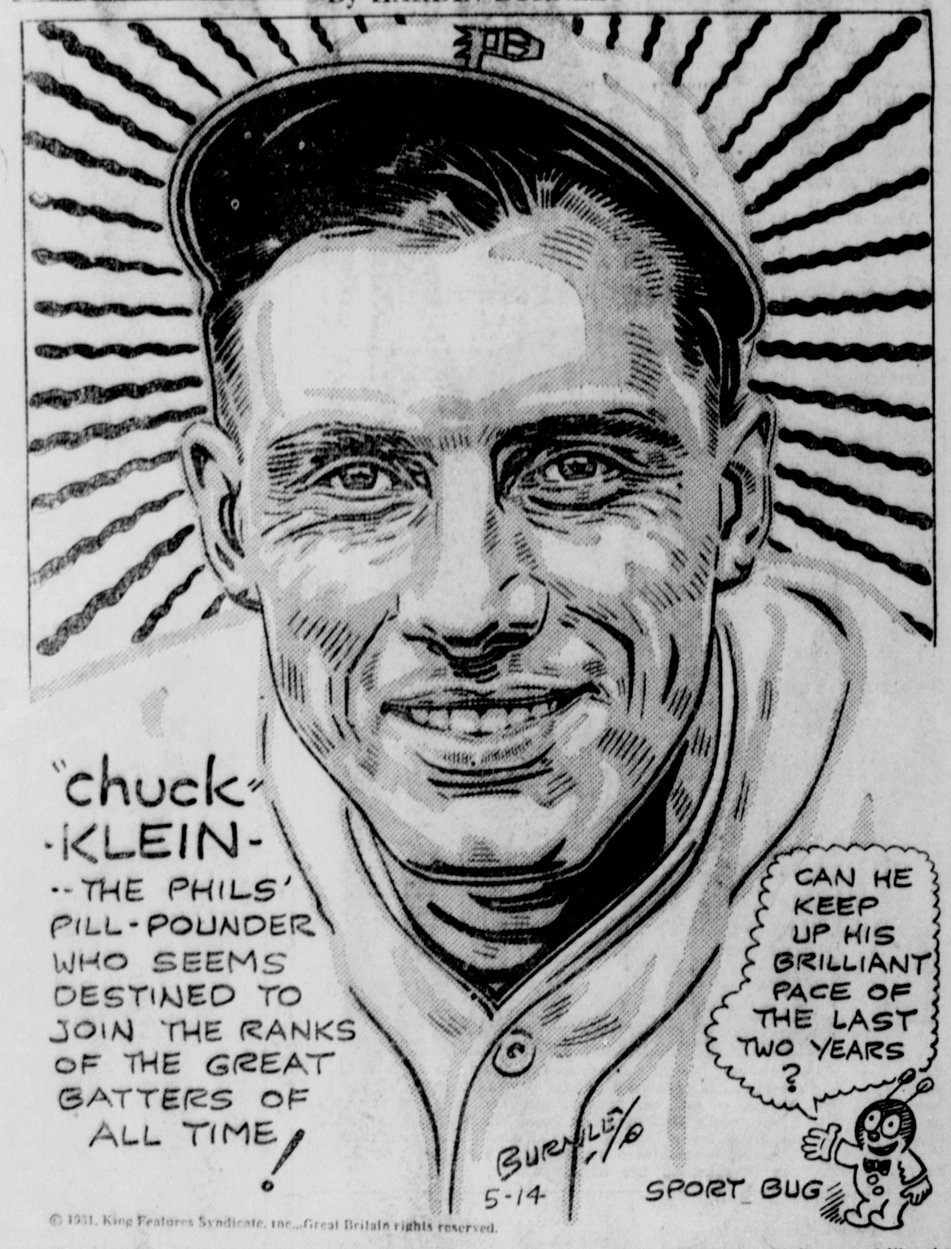

Experts are almost a unit in predicting that the masterly Jack will whip the still green Italian in decisive style. He'll then be in line for the big open-air show in September. If he can't get the Schmeling-Strib winner for that, he may take on Tommy Loughran or Mickey Walker.

What looked like a dismal, dull season for the Gob now looms as his richest provided he can beat his ancient jinx and do to Primo what Dempsey did to Firpo. A slow 15-round decision will not help Sharkey much. He must stop "The Man Mountain" as he did Loughran or flay Carnera alive to prove the claim that he's the world's best heavyweight.

"The Best Since Speaker"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

OUTSTANDING outfielders have been many in the major leagues since Tris Speaker was finally retired by time a few seasons back but none probably has shown the combined hitting power and fielding class of Charles H. "Chuck" Klein of the Phillies. Like the immortal Speaker, "Chuck" patrols center field. Klein was reaching for a rattle back in 1907 as Tris was breaking in with the Boston Red Sox back in 1907. When the old "Gray Eagle" left the majors in 1928, "Chuck" was just getting his start with the Phils. He's now 25 and already has been a sensation for two years.

Klein has yet to develop the sheer grace and uncanny skill with which Speaker for years snagged difficult flies, but that should come with more experience. Thus far, "Chuck" has been a much longer and heavier hitter than Speaker even in his glorious prime.

Klein's two-year (1929-30) batting average was .369. Last season he drove in 158 runs for the Phils, and—in the popular specialty—he slammed out 40 home runs, three less than he poled the previous year. His fielding, while satisfactory, did not land him in the topnotch ten among the gardners in either 1929 or 1930, but he did compile the unique record of 42 assists last season. These brief statistics give a vivid idea of how potent a player "Chuck" has been thus far with the Phils.

This year, Klein started like the proverbial house afire. He made two homers in the opening game; and another, the next day, with a single, double and triple thrown in for full measure. There was considerable let-down after those explosions; nevertheless, "Chuck" is hitting above .300 at this writing and fielding better than ever.

Klein is facing some stiff competition in the Philly outfield which also features Buzz Arlett, slugging Pacific Coast purchase, and Hal Lee, another precocious willow-wielder. With such pace-making, "Chuck" should demonthis year whether he merits ranking as "the best center fielder since Tris Speaker's time."

BATTALINO RULES AS WORLD'S FEATHERWEIGHT CHAMPION

SCORES VICTORY OVER LA BARBA IN 15 ROUNDS

EFFECTIVELY DISPROVES BELIEF HE WAS A "CHEESE CHAMPION"

WINS BY RELENTLESSLY CARRYING THE BATTLE TO HIS OPPONENT

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, May 23.—World's Featherweight Champion Christopher (Bat) Battalino today was recognized as the ruler of his division in fact as well as in name.

The rugged little Hartford, Conn., Italian effectively disproved the belief that he was a "cheese champion" when he scored a convincing 15-round victory over Fidel La Barba of California at Madison Square Garden last night.

An overwhelming majority of the 9,179 spectators who donated $35,727.99 to witness the bout expected to see the title change hands—as almost every fistic expert predicted it would—and the 1,000 odd Hartford fans who attended the contest profited handsomely by accepting Broadway's "wise money" betting odds of 2 to 1 against the champion.

The bout was reminiscent of Battalino's only previous New York title defense, when the reputedly unworthy champion belied 4 to 1 betting odds to defeat Kid Chocolate, regarded as one of the truly great fighters of the day.

As in the Chocolate fight, Battalino won by relentlessly carrying the battle to his opponent and came from behind to win the unanimous verdict of Referee Kid McPartland and Judges Billy Joh and George Kelley. The decision was popular with the spectators, although a majority of newspapermen at the ringside believed LaBarba's cleaner hitting, clever boxing and ability to make Battalino miss earned him at least a draw.

Battalino, easily the strongest and most rugged fighter in the class, was the aggressor from the start, but landed few clean punches. He did almost all of his scoring during the infighting and often looked like a novice against LaBarba's clever boxing. Both fighters were guilty of frequent clinching but Battalino managed to make it appear that LaBarba was the chief offender in this respect, although in reality the champion forced many of the tie-ups.

LaBarba, easily the best boxer in the division and conqueror of all ranking contenders for the title, made the mistake of being overcautious. He allowed Battalino to steal the play during the early rounds, came back to badly outclass the champion from the fifth to the tenth inclusive, but lacked the stamina to keep pace with his opponent in the final sessions.

The Californian was disappointed keenly by his failure to win, but took the defeat in good spirit. "Really, I thought I deserved the decision," he told the United Press, "but at least I feel that I learned enough to beat him next time. You know I'd never seen Battalino until we weighed in today. I'm not kicking but I hope he'll give me another chance."

Battalino was jubilant, not only because of the victory but because of the great ovation he received on entering and leaving the ring. "I guess they won't call me a 'cheese champ' any longer," he said. "I realized I hadn't proved myself when I won the title from Routis in 1929 but now that I've won from Chocolate and LaBarba, who everyone said were the best men in the class, I guess they'll admit I must deserve the title. I came through with my hands Okay and am ready to meet any and all comers."

Klein's two-year (1929-30) batting average was .369. Last season he drove in 158 runs for the Phils, and—in the popular specialty—he slammed out 40 home runs, three less than he poled the previous year. His fielding, while satisfactory, did not land him in the topnotch ten among the gardners in either 1929 or 1930, but he did compile the unique record of 42 assists last season. These brief statistics give a vivid idea of how potent a player "Chuck" has been thus far with the Phils.

This year, Klein started like the proverbal house afire. He made two homers in the opening game; and another, the next day, with a single, double and triple thrown in for full measure. There was considerable let-down after those explosions; nevertheless, "Chuck" is hitting above .300 at this writing and fielding better than ever.

Klein is facing some stiff competition in the Philly outfield which also features Buzz Arlett, slugging Pacific Coast purchase, and Hal Lee, another precocious willow-wielder. With such pace-making, "Chuck" should demonthis year whether he merits ranking as "the best center fielder since Tris Speaker's time."

SOON TO BE A MEMORY

WASHINGTON, May 00. — With the announcement by Major General Douglas MacArthur that tanks of "combat cars" equipped with machine guns and small cannon would take the place of cavalry, and that all the 8,000 horses now in service will be retired with the honors of war, the inexorable march of progress writes finis to one of the most colorful and romantic phases in the art of Mars.

Ever since a fleet of rattling taxicabs wheezed and groaned their way out of Paris, in 1914, and went to meet and cut to ribbons the cream of the German cavalry, the eventual abolition of the horse as an arm of war has been assured. The Great War proved, among other things, that cavalry was as obsolete as the bow and arrow, and since the cessation of hostilities the master minds have been planning and devising an arm to take its place.

ROMANCE, COLOR TO GO.

No more shall posterity read with pulsing pride of gallant charges on forlorn hopes, of the thunder of hoofs, the creak of saddles and the jingle of sabres. The martial men of the future will go forth to war in oily overalls to the accompanying of grinding gears and the fumes of gasoline.

Simultaneously with General MacArthur's announcement the War Department asked bids on seven convertible tanks of the Christie type, recently tested with great success. They must weigh no less than 15 tons and must make 40 miles an hour on hard roads. Their fighting equipment will be a machine gun and a 37-millimeter cannon each and the estimated cost will be $70,000 per car fully equipped.

Army officers hail the mechanization program as the most advanced move toward the modernization of U. S. forces since the Morrow Board charted a definite airplane program. As an example of efficiency of motorized units, they point out that the 300 mile march from Fort Eustis in Virginia to Fort Bragg in North Carolina can be made in two days by trucks as against twenty-five by horses.

HEROES AT PREMIUM

But in extolling the virtues of machinization, the war lords lose sight of the fact that it was the glamour of cavalry that partly counteracted the horrors of war and gave the touch of romance that stirred the blood, instilling the dash of recklessness that made the good soldier. If Paul Revere had made his famous ride on a motor cycle the episode would now be in the limbo of forgotten things, or had Sheridan took that trip to Winchester in a flivver, who'd have ever heard about it? Would the spectacle of Teddy Roosevelt riding up San Juan Hill in a Packard cause the pulse to beat any faster?

The answer to those questions is very probably in the negative, therefore, posterity is going to be in a bad way for heroes. A man cannot shine in battle if he is going to be cooped up in an iron box. But maybe progress will advance to a point where wars can be fought without even men.

Already we have robots that can smoke, tell the time, use a telephone and a thousand and one things, so why not abolish the human soldier? The idea has advantages. Robots leave no widows, nor would they miss a leg or an arm and all their hurts could be fixed with a monkey wrench. Verily it is a great idea.

TWO SUSPECTED OF CHECK PASSING

Woman Taken Into Custody on Fifth Street on Information of Store Salesman

While a third member of the alleged gang was being sought in Brainerd this afternoon, police arrested a man and woman for questioning concerning the alleged passing of worthless checks.

The woman was taken into custody on Fifth street as she went to enter an automobile parked south of Laurel street. She was taken to the county jail as the city has no accomodations for women. The man was picked up later and was being questioned this afternoon.

Arrest of the woman came after she attempted to pass a check at the John M. Bye Clothing Co. store after she had passed checks at the O'Brien Mercantile store and E. F. Gates.

Henry Cunningham became suspicious, refused to cash the check and when the woman left the store, followed her to the car, informing a policeman on the way.

The woman and man gave Minneapolis addresses.

REDUCE YOUR COST OF FINE-CAR OWNERSHIP WITH OAKLAND EIGHT

an outstanding General Motors value

Naturally we are interested to know why people like the new Oakland Eight. And so, recently we asked a young couple what pleased them so much. Their answers were different in some ways—as men and women are supposed to be—yet pretty much the same when you analyze them!

The woman said: "Well, for one thing, I can feel the quality of the upholstery. It's genuine mohair—and that convinces me the car is well made all through. Then, I think the Oakland is just as good-looking and smart as can be. The seats are so comfortable, too, and I can easily move the driver's seat forward or back to suit me exactly.

"It's no effort at all for me to steer the Oakland—and in traffic it's just fine how quickly it gets away. Of course I don't pretend to know mechanical things, but the gears surely do shift easily." (Indeed, they do—they're Syncro-Mesh!)

The man said: "Oakland struck me as an exceptionally good buy. It's a full-grown man's car. And when I slammed the doors, the car felt solid and well-built.

"I'm all for the new Oakland's motor. To me, a car that hasn't got plenty of speed and power simply won't do. I surely like the pick-up and smoothness I get with this powerful big eight. It eats up hills."

Of course, what they both liked was Oakland's all-round value. A man may not know fabrics, but he wants quality and durability there. A woman may not know motors, but she wants fine performance. Oakland has the quality everyone wants, and saves owners money on these qualities. (Body by Fisher)

Drive this fine car—or ride in it. Any Oakland-Pontiac dealer will arrange a demonstration at your convenience.

One important step in reducing your cost of car ownership is Oakland-Pontiac's policy of equipping its cars ready for the road. The prices you see advertised are the prices you actually pay. Cars are equipped with front and rear bumpers, 4 hydraulic shock absorbers, 5 wire wheels, and extra tire, tube and tire lock. Wood wheels optional at no extra cost.

Loss at Stinson Mill Estimated at $1,200 to Stock and $1,000 to Building

Fire destroyed the Stinson Feed Mill, owned by W. G. Stinson, at Pequot early today at an estimated loss of $1,200 to stock and $1,000 to the building.

The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The owner was unable to learn the cause of the fire. Flames were first seen to shoot from the building about 4:30 A. M. They soon enveloped the entire building and were impossible to stop by the meager fire fighting equipment of the village.

The mill contained a considerable quantity of flour and feed.

The long distance Bell Telephone lead, Brainerd to Bemidji, was burned down by the fire, cutting off all circuits north from Brainerd. Service was restored by 8 A. M. today.

The lines were located directly above the building.

TWO SUSPECTED OF CHECK PASSING

Woman Taken Into Custody on Fifth Street on Information of Store Salesman

While a third member of the alleged gang was being sought in Brainerd this afternoon, police arrested a man and woman for questioning concerning the alleged passing of worthless checks.

The woman was taken into custody on Fifth street as she went to enter an automobile parked south of Laurel street. She was taken to the county jail as the city has no accomodations for women. The man was picked up later and was being questioned this afternoon.

Arrest of the woman came after she attempted to pass a check at the John M. Bye Clothing Co. store after she had passed checks at the O'Brien Mercantile store and E. F. Gates.

Henry Cunningham became suspicious, refused to cash the check and when the woman left the store, followed her to the car, informing a policeman on the way.

The woman and man gave Minneapolis addresses.

REDUCE YOUR COST OF FINE-CAR OWNERSHIP WITH OAKLAND EIGHT

an outstanding General Motors value

Naturally we are interested to know why people like the new Oakland Eight. And so, recently we asked a young couple what pleased them so much. Their answers were different in some ways—as men and women are supposed to be—yet pretty much the same when you analyze them!

The woman said: "Well, for one thing, I can feel the quality of the upholstery. It's genuine mohair—and that convinces me the car is well made all through. Then, I think the Oakland is just as good-looking and smart as can be. The seats are so comfortable, too, and I can easily move the driver's seat forward or back to suit me exactly.

"It's no effort at all for me to steer the Oakland—and in traffic it's just fine how quickly it gets away. Of course I don't pretend to know mechanical things, but the gears surely do shift easily." (Indeed, they do—they're Syncro-Mesh!)

The man said: "Oakland struck me as an exceptionally good buy. It's a full-grown man's car. And when I slammed the doors, the car felt solid and well-built.

"I'm all for the new Oakland's motor. To me, a car that hasn't got plenty of speed and power simply won't do. I surely like the pick-up and smoothness I get with this powerful big eight. It eats up hills."

Of course, what they both liked was Oakland's all-round value. A man may not know fabrics, but he wants quality and durability there. A woman may not know motors, but she wants fine performance. Oakland has the quality everyone wants, and saves owners money on these qualities. (Body by Fisher)

Drive this fine car—or ride in it. Any Oakland-Pontiac dealer will arrange a demonstration at your convenience.

One important step in reducing your cost of car ownership is Oakland-Pontiac's policy of equipping its cars ready for the road. The prices you see advertised are the prices you actually pay. Cars are equipped with front and rear bumpers, 4 hydraulic shock absorbers, 5 wire wheels, and extra tire, tube and tire lock. Wood wheels optional at no extra cost.

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The body of Baroness von Wiese is found in the garden of Eagle's Nest, Emily Hardy's palatial country home, wrapped in Mary Frost's shawl. Preceding her murder, the Baroness had given a note to the butler. This he denies. She had also quarreled with her maid. Mary Frost, returning for her shawl, at midnight, saw it on Laura Allan. Laura, however, claims Mary entered the garden wearing the shawl. "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter, fiancee of Assistant Police Chief Walter Vance, learns Laura was responsible for the broken engagement of her own sister and Ted Frost, Mary's husband. Ted had also flirted with the Baroness. "Bim" observing the butler dancing, wonders about him. She learns from Carl Carey, New York reporter, that the Baroness was Margot Belle, famous dancer. The supposed stolen jewels of the Baroness are found in the Baron's care. Vance thinks Ted Frost may have committed the crime, mistaking the Baroness for his wife of whom he is jealous. Although Ted and Mary Frost left Eagle's Nest separately before midnight, they arrived home together at 4 a. m. Vance finds a pair of dusty slippers on the roof. "Bim" compares them with those worn by the Baroness. She finds the maid watching her. "Bim" discovers the maid, who is gracefully built, wears large shoes. Vance unearths part of a uniform in the cellar stove.

CHAPTER XXX

CLOSER examination of the linen skirt showed that it was marked by the same grayish stains that bespattered the slippers.

"It's stone-dust from the pebble path," Walter said. "The woman stepped on the path and then walked through the dewey grass. She—that is, if she was the one who brought the dress down here—burned the waist and probably something happened to frighten her before she could dispose of the skirt the same way."

"She might have been a servant," Bim suggested. "Someone from anywhere at all come to visit one of Em's servants. Of course they wouldn't tell—they'd deny it. Maybe she just was snooping around to see what went on here. Only if that was the case, how would she have found a chance to come into this shut-up basement and destroy the dress and to get up on the roof and hide the slippers? Unless she's very, very clever. Cleverer than any servant I've ever heard of."

Self-Preservation

"Well, if she only borrowed the uniform as a camouflage, what'd she want to make away with it afterward for?" Walter demanded.

"Fear, probably. She got scared, I think. Listen, Walter; supposing she were someone spying about and saw the killing in spite of herself. Of course, she'd destroy every possible thing that might give herself away."

Walter nodded, more than half convinced. "Spying around seems to have been the popular indoor and outdoor sport at Eagle's Nest. What do you say, Bim?"

"Imogene? Let me find out, Wally?"

He shrugged, but gave permission and they left the old basement rather stealthily and eventually came out upon the terrace, where they found William gathering the magazines from the wicker table—the same magazines, Bim reflected, which had caught the attention of the Baroness; one of them, indeed, would be the very book upon whose torn page the dead woman had written the note indirectly responsible for her visit to the garden and for her death.

"Where are you taking those?" Bim asked the butler.

"We change them every week, miss. The new ones have come and Mrs. Hardy gives me the old ones."

Bim asked him to leave them for a little while. "Something I want to look up, William. If you don't mind?"

"Certainly, miss." He swung away with his lithe, graceful stride and Bim settled herself beside the table to go through the periodicals while Walter looked on somewhat puzzled till Bim explained, whereupon he helped with the search.

It was fruitless, however, in the dozen or more magazines they leafed through not one page was missing.

"Which shows," Bim said, 'that one of the books has been taken away."

"And which also shows that someone around here is working against us. Well . . ." Walter strolled away across the grounds while Bim went to find Em Hardy.

Em was in her boudoir, resting off the effects of her afternoon's business with the undertaker on a chaise longue while her maid bathed her head with eau de cologne.

No Headway

"Ain't it Hades?" she bellowed at sight of Bim, enjoying herself immensely. "What's the good word, child? Caught anybody yet?"

"Maybe," Bim replied discreetly. That's not what I'm here about, though; I just wanted a little chat." She glanced at Em's ostrich-trimmed mules and then at Imogene's pert and daintily shod though not overly small feet. "Where do you buy your shoes, Em?"

Mrs. Hardy bought her shoes in Paris from the man whose name was stamped in the silver slippers Walter had found in the tank on the roof.

Bim received this information without surprise; she felt some way that she had expected it and was not watching Mrs. Hardy but Imogene as she listened. The maid, however, showed no interest in the conversation; she appeared hardly to be listening.

"You wear black satin pumps, don't you?" Bim asked further. "Had any silver ones lately?"

"Mercy, child, silver is passe as the hills! Nope! Imogene inherited my last ones ages ago. When was it, anyway?"

"Last Winter, Madame," the girl replied, still without interest. "They were short for me so I couldn't wear them at all."

"I'd love to see them," Bim remarked wistfully. "You see," she explained in reply to Em's surprised look, "I'm thinking of getting some evening shoes and I do love silver even if it is sort of old."

Em fell into the trap. "It's a matter of taste after all. Go get 'em, Imogene. I had that pair on only once and maybe they'll fit you."

The maid left the room at once but it was some time before she returned looking blank. "Something's happened to the silver slippers, Madame. I'd wrapped them in tissue and laid them up thinking to give them to my little niece. And now they're gone!" Quite plainly she was indignant and inclined to be suspicious. "I didn't think to lock them up, Madame," she added.

"Nonsense, Imogene! If you're implying that Jane took those shoes you're crazy. Jane's got feet like gunboats! You've probably mislaid them is all. I'm sorry," Em told Bim. "Anything else do? There's a pair of black and gold I don't much care for."

Bim thanked her and said nothing else would answer. And she left the two women feeling thoroughly certain that Imogene's surprise at the disappearance of the silver slippers as well as her indignation had been real.

Who, then, had worn the silver slippers on the night of the murder? Why? And how? 'Well," thought Bim hopelessly, "Well."

Returning to the terrace she encountered what she regarded as a complication since there approached from one direction the alert, personable figure of Mr. Carl Carey while from the other way, moving with a determined and somewhat belligerent step, came Mr. Walter Vance.

Carey was not alone. Another man followed him at a little distance; one who carried a tripod and a black box which Bim recognized as a camera. Carey, she understood at once, had sent for a photographer and tomorrow the city paper would give to all who cared to see views of Eagle's Nest with an X, no doubt, to mark the spot where the Baroness von Wiese was murdered.

But this was not destined to happen, because Walter would not allow it. "Nothing doing," he told Carey as he came up on the terrace. "I won't have this case spoiled by publicity."

Carey shrugged good naturedly, though his eyes were angry, and sent the photographer away. "Very well, Chief; we won't cramp your style."

"It's not a question—" Walter began. But the reporter interrupted:

"Right-o. Any new developments? Arrest within twenty-four hours?" he asked mockingly.

Walter blushed furiously and turned his back; he would have stalked away but Carey called after him. "Hear some of your pet witnesses are laid low, Chief. Mind if the press—" he grinned at Bim, "strolls over for a little interview with Mr. Robert Trent?"

"Trent?" Walter whirled about and Bim looked aghast as she repeated the name. 'Is Bob ill? Why, that's terrible.'

"So I'm told," Carey replied. "How's for a ramble up the mountain, Bim, my child?"

"Oh, we'll all go," the girl put in quickly. "Poor Bob—and poor

Three's a Crowd

Millicent! All this excitement—"

The three started out, Walter silent and ungracious and Carey chattering gaily to the apprehensive girl. They climbed over the stile in the wall which ran along the back of Eagle's Nest and padded through the white dust of the private road on a short cut to Lowland Drive, which curved about the mountain past the Trent cottage.

There they found Millicent sitting on the little porch. She received them with a brave smile, though Bim saw at once that her eyes were red with weeping. She put her arms around the fluttering shoulders of little Mrs. Trent and tried to be reassuring.

"Is Bob very ill, dear? You've got a nurse?"

"I'm taking care of him, Bim. He's just worn out; you know how it is. A few days in bed, the doctor says." In spite of her worry, Millicent flirted a little with Walter and with Carl, struck rather by the reporter's good looks. "Come and speak to him a minute; it'll do him good." She led the way through the neat living room to a bedroom where Bob lay as one completely exhausted, his face white as the pillow upon which his head rested.

MADRID CHURCH DESTROYED

Great crowds milled through the streets of Madrid, Spain, after the torch was applied to the Jesuit church, the structure at the left. In the capital and cities throughout the country Catholic property suffered from the fury of mobs. The provisional government has threatened harsh treatment of offenders, feeling that the outrages are harmful to the cause of new Spain.

Richard Barthelmess and Regis Toomey in a scene from their latest starring drama, "The Finger Points," a gripping story of a reporter who knew too much and used as his shield "you can't kill a newspaper man." This daring drama was written by John Monk Saunders, author of "Dawn Patrol" and W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar." "The Finger Points" will be seen at the Paramount midnight show tonight and Sunday and Monday.

the service at St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

It was in this church that the "Grey Wolf" startled Los Angeles when he announced he had "seen the light" and dropped a huge diamond ring into the collection box. He followed with a $25,000 donation and was said to have made other gifts.

Twenty years ago Crawford came to Los Angeles as a bartender in a small saloon.

Crawford turned to gambling. His fortune grew and he turned business man on the side. He made much in the Los Angeles real estate boom.

His name was linked with that of Marco and later with Guy McAfee, present gambling power in the city. Rumors were that Crawford and McAfee were estranged when Crawford was shot, but McAfee declared everything had been patched up.

The peak of Crawford's power came when he backed George Cryer, a dark horse candidate for mayor. Cryer won and Crawford was known as the "ghost behind the city hall."

HELEN FISHER DRILL TO GET A DIVORCE

CLAIMS HER HUSBAND INSISTS ON BEING DRAMATIC

New York, May 23.—(U.P.)—Helen Fisher Drill, St. Paul heiress who attracted national attention recently when she was allegedly kidnaped by her husband from a Manhattan boarding house, said today that she intends to go to Reno to get a divorce.

Her husband, now in St. Paul, is Harry Hamilton Drill, nephew of Lewis L. Drill, United States attorney at St. Paul.

"Harry insists on being dramatic," Mrs. Drill said. "That's why I married him the second time after we had been divorced. He threatened to kill himself if I didn't. But I don't think he'll commit suicide now if he hears I'm going to Reno."

with a full resolve to play the man's part in a terrible business.

"Their patriotism never wavered but rather their devotion grew and found its way back to the quiet campuses which they had left in the full flush of their youthful enthusiasm.

"To them and to all those from Cornell who followed them we dedicate this memorial. In speaking for the Cornell dead I am drawing the attention of this nation to all of its university war dead, indeed, to all our youth who went over, never to come back.

"In this memorial, as in all our other memorials, we do not seek to glorify war or to perpetuate hatreds. We are commemorating not war, but the courage and the devotion and the sacrifice of those who gave their lives for their fellows and for their country. We praise these because we are able to remember the ideals which possessed us at the time. We do not condemn our own action or belittle the high motives and ideals which based our efforts when we acknowledge that the war was a catastrophe.

"Here in the scenes which they loved you have built a loving monument to their memory. We can not add to their glory, but we and our descendants will be the better for remembering them."

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

The body of Baroness von Wiese is found in the garden of Eagle's Nest, Emily Hardy's palatial country home, wrapped in Mary Frost's shawl. Preceding her murder, the Baroness had given a note to the butler. This he denies. She had also quarreled with her maid. Mary Frost, returning for her shawl, at midnight, saw it on Laura Allan. Laura, however, claims Mary entered the garden wearing the shawl. "Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter, fiancee of Assistant Police Chief Walter Vance, learns Laura was responsible for the broken engagement of her own sister and Ted Frost, Mary's husband. Ted had also flirted with the Baroness. "Bim" observing the butler dancing, wonders about him. She learns from Carl Carey, New York reporter, that the Baroness was Margot Belle, famous dancer. The supposed stolen jewels of the Baroness are found in the Baron's care. Vance thinks Ted Frost may have committed the crime, mistaking the Baroness for his wife of whom he is jealous. Although Ted and Mary Frost left Eagle's Nest separately before midnight, they arrived home together at 4 a. m. Vance finds a pair of dusty slippers on the roof. "Bim" compares them with those worn by the Baroness. She finds the maid watching her. "Bim" discovers the maid, who is gracefully built, wears large shoes. Vance unearths part of a uniform in the cellar stove.

CHAPTER XXX

CLOSER examination of the linen skirt showed that it was marked by the same grayish stains that bespattered the slippers.

"It's stone-dust from the pebble path," Walter said. "The woman stepped on the path and then walked through the dewey grass. She—that is, if she was the one who brought the dress down here—burned the waist and probably something happened to frighten her before she could dispose of the skirt the same way."

"She might have been a servant," Bim suggested. "Someone from anywhere at all come to visit one of Em's servants. Of course they wouldn't tell—they'd deny it. Maybe she just was nooping around to see what went on here. Only if that was the case, how would she have found a chance to come into this shut-up basement and destroy the dress and to get up on the roof and hide the slippers? Unless she's very, very clever. Cleverer than any servant I've ever heard of."

Self-Preservation

"Well, if she only borrowed the uniform as a camouflage, what'd she want to make away with it afterward for?" Walter demanded.

"Fear, probably. She got scared, I think. Listen, Walter; supposing she were someone spying about and saw the killing in spite of herself. Of course, she'd destroy every possible thing that might give herself away."

Walter nodded, more than half convinced. "Spying around seems to have been the popular indoor and outdoor sport at Eagle's Nest. What do you say, Bim?"

"Imogene? Let me find out, Wally?"

He shrugged, but gave permission and they left the old basement rather stealthily and eventually came out upon the terrace, where they found William gathering the magazines from the wicker table—the same magazines, Bim reflected, which had caught the attention of the Baroness; one of them, indeed, would be the very book upon whose torn page the dead woman had written the note indirectly responsible for her visit to the garden and for her death.

"Where are you taking those?" Bim asked the butler.

"We change them every week, miss. The new ones have come and Mrs. Hardy gives me the old ones."

Bim asked him to leave them for a little while. "Something I want to look up, William. If you don't mind?"

"Certainly, miss." He swung away with his lithe, graceful stride and Bim settled herself beside the table to go through the periodicals while Walter looked on somewhat puzzled till Bim explained, whereupon he helped with the search.

It was fruitless, however, in the dozen or more magazines they leafed through not one page was missing.

"Which shows," Bim said, 'that one of the books has been taken away."

"And which also shows that someone around here is working against us. Well . . ." Walter strolled away across the grounds while Bim went to find Em Hardy.

Em was in her boudoir, resting off the effects of her afternoon's business with the undertaker on a chaise longue while her maid bathed her head with eau de cologne.

No Headway

"Ain't it Hades?" she bellowed at sight of Bim, enjoying herself immensely. "What's the good word, child? Caught anybody yet?"

"Maybe," Bim replied discreetly. That's not what I'm here about, though; I just wanted a little chat." She glanced at Em's ostrich-trimmed mules and then at Imogene's pert and daintily shod though not overly small feet. "Where do you buy your shoes, Em?"

Mrs. Hardy bought her shoes in Paris from the man whose name was stamped in the silver slippers Walter had found in the tank on the roof.

Bim received this information without surprise; she felt some way that she had expected it and was not watching Mrs. Hardy but Imogene as she listened. The maid, however, showed no interest in the conversation; she appeared hardly to be listening.

"You wear black satin pumps, don't you?" Bim asked further. "Had any silver ones lately?"

"Mercy, child, silver is passe as the hills! Nope! Imogene inherited my last ones ages ago. When was it, anyway?"

"Last Winter, Madame," the girl replied, still without interest. "They were short for me so I couldn't wear them at all."

"I'd love to see them," Bim remarked wistfully. "You see," she explained in reply to Em's surprised look, "I'm thinking of getting some evening shoes and I do love silver even if it is sort of old."

Em fell into the trap. "It's a matter of taste after all. Go get 'em, Imogene. I had that pair on only once and maybe they'll fit you."

The maid left the room at once but it was some time before she returned looking blank. "Something's happened to the silver slippers, Madame. I'd wrapped them in tissue and laid them up thinking to give them to my little niece. And now they're gone!" Quite plainly she was indignant and inclined to be suspicious. "I didn't think to lock them up, Madame," she added.

"Nonsense, Imogene! If you're implying that Jane took those shoes you're crazy. Jane's got feet like gunboats! You've probably mislaid them is all. I'm sorry," Em told Bim. "Anything else do? There's a pair of black and gold I don't much care for."

Bim thanked her and said nothing else would answer. And she left the two women feeling thoroughly certain that Imogene's surprise at the disappearance of the silver slippers as well as her indignation had been real.

Who, then, had worn the silver slippers on the night of the murder? Why? And how? 'Well," thought Bim hopelessly, "Well."

Returning to the terrace she encountered what she regarded as a complication since there approached from one direction the alert, personable figure of Mr. Carl Carey while from the other way, moving with a determined and somewhat belligerent step, came Mr. Walter Vance.

Carey was not alone. Another man followed him at a little distance; one who carried a tripod and a black box which Bim recognized as a camera. Carey, she understood at once, had sent for a photographer and tomorrow the city paper would give to all who cared to see views of Eagle's Nest with an X, no doubt, to mark the spot where the Baroness von Wiese was murdered.

But this was not destined to happen, because Walter would not allow it. "Nothing doing," he told Carey as he came up on the terrace. "I won't have this case spoiled by publicity."

Carey shrugged good naturedly, though his eyes were angry, and sent the photographer away. "Very well, Chief; we won't cramp your style."

"It's not a question—' Walter began. But the reporter interrupted:

"Right-o. Any new developments? Arrest within twenty-four hours?" he asked mockingly.

Walter blushed furiously and turned his back; he would have stalked away but Carey called after him. "Hear some of your pet witnesses are laid low, Chief. Mind if the press—" he grinned at Bim, "strolls over for a little interview with Mr. Robert Trent?"

'Trent?" Walter whirled about and Bim looked aghast as she repeated the name. 'Is Bob ill? Why, that's terrible.'

"So I'm told," Carey replied. "How's for a ramble up the mountain, Bim, my child?"

"Oh, we'll all go," the girl put in quickly. "Poor Bob—and poor

Three's a Crowd

Millicent! All this excitement—"

The three started out, Walter silent and ungracious and Carey chattering gaily to the apprehensive girl. They climbed over the stile in the wall which ran along the back of Eagle's Nest and padded through the white dust of the private road on a short cut to Lowland Drive, which curved about the mountain past the Trent cottage.

There they found Millicent sitting on the little porch. She received them with a brave smile, though Bim saw at once that her eyes were red with weeping. She put her arms around the fluttering shoulders of little Mrs. Trent and tried to be reassuring.

"Is Bob very ill, dear? You've got a nurse?"

"I'm taking care of him, Bim. He's just worn out; you know how it is. A few days in bed, the doctor says." In spite of her worry, Millicent flirted a little with Walter and with Carl, struck rather by the reporter's good looks. "Come and speak to him a minute; it'll do him good." She led the way through the neat living room to a bedroom where Bob lay as one completely exhausted, his face white as the pillow upon which his head rested.

MADRID CHURCH DESTROYED

Great crowds milled through the streets of Madrid, Spain, after the torch was applied to the Jesuit church, the structure at the left. In the capital and cities throughout the country Catholic property suffered from the fury of mobs. The provisional government has threatened harsh treatment of offenders, feeling that the outrages are harmful to the cause of new Spain.

Richard Barthelmess and Regis Toomey in a scene from their latest starring drama, "The Finger Points," a gripping story of a reporter who knew too much and used as his shield "you can't kill a newspaper man." This daring drama was written by John Monk Saunders, author of "Dawn Patrol" and W. R. Burnett, author of "Little Caesar." "The Finger Points" will be seen at the Paramount midnight show tonight and Sunday and Monday.

the service at St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

It was in this church that the "Grey Wolf" startled Los Angeles when he announced he had "seen the light" and dropped a huge diamond ring into the collection box. He followed with a $25,000 donation and was said to have made other gifts.

Twenty years ago Crawford came to Los Angeles as a bartender in a small saloon.

Crawford turned to gambling. His fortune grew and he turned business man on the side. He made much in the Los Angeles real estate boom.

His name was linked with that of Marco and later with Guy McAfee, present gambling power in the city. Rumors were that Crawford and McAfee were estranged when Crawford was shot, but McAfee declared everything had been patched up.

The peak of Crawford's power came when he backed George Cryer, a dark horse candidate for mayor. Cryer won and Crawford was known as the "ghost behind the city hall."

HELEN FISHER DRILL TO GET A DIVORCE

CLAIMS HER HUSBAND INSISTS ON BEING DRAMATIC

New York, May 23.—(U.P.)—Helen Fisher Drill, St. Paul heiress who attracted national attention recently when she was allegedly kidnaped by her husband from a Manhattan boarding house, said today that she intends to go to Reno to get a divorce.

Her husband, now in St. Paul, is Harry Hamilton Drill, nephew of Lewis L. Drill, United States attorney at St. Paul.

"Harry insists on being dramatic," Mrs. Drill said. "That's why I married him the second time after we had been divorced. He threatened to kill himself if I didn't. But I don't think he'll commit suicide now if he hears I'm going to Reno."

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S TALK HERALDS VALOR OF THE CORNELL YOUTHS

with a full resolve to play the man's part in a terrible business.

"Their patriotism never wavered but rather their devotion grew and found its way back to the quiet campuses which they had left in the full flush of their youthful enthusiasm.

"To them and to all those from Cornell who followed them we dedicate this memorial. In speaking for the Cornell dead I am drawing the attention of this nation to all of its university war dead, indeed, to all our youth who went over, never to come back.

"In this memorial, as in all our other memorials, we do not seek to glorify war or to perpetuate hatreds. We are commemorating not war, but the courage and the devotion and the sacrifice of those who gave their lives for their fellows and for their country. We praise these because we are able to remember the ideals which possessed us at the time. We do not condemn our own action or belittle the high motives and ideals which based our efforts when we acknowledge that the war was a catastrophe.

"Here in the scenes which they loved you have built a loving monument to their memory. We can not add to their glory, but we and our descendants will be the better for remembering them."
